Waikiki, which means spouting waters in Hawaiian, holds a beautiful history for great water activities in Hawaiian culture. For instance, in the 1800s, the Hawaiian royals created Waikiki into their playground-where they enjoyed surfing on longboards. Today, the longboard tradition continues, as the water here provides the best conditions. Eventually, the royals initiated several launching of smaller hotels in the 1800s. By 1901, they launched their first large hotel, the Moana Surfrider. Other historic hotels dating back to the early 20th century include the beautiful Royal Hawaiian Hotel. Today, the area boasts every kind of accommodation to cater to the tourists drawn to Waikiki Beach every year.
